Dear Robert, Lencie and Team Legacy.

Our Leadership Team recently completed the Mission Control Workshop in the Fall of 2016.

In today's day and age as companies seek to become ever more productive and efficient, workshops touting time management tools are seen as an easy way to offer training, a way for senior management to "tick the box". These workshops indeed have an impact on office and individual productivity; however it is often temporary and without significant impact to the bottom line.

The Mission Control Workshop offered by Legacy is a completely unique offering in the realm of company productivity. It offers tools, a system and a language that, once initiated, will deliver a step change in your management team's output. At ElitAvia, the mission control system is now recognized by all leaders, it is a singular but binding language amongst us. The resulting power, freedom and peace of mind had made a significant impact lowering the stress level and increasing the ability to handle new challenges without fear. Deadlines are respected, the level of integrity at the management level is exemplary.

The most fundamental and important aspect of the Mission Control Workshop - it offers transformation, not a temporary band-aid solution. All in two short days. What could be more efficient and value-added than that?

Sincerely,

CEO
